

Our response to COVID-19 (coronavirus)

Like many of you, we have been closely following the developments around coronavirus. At KODIAK Property Management, we care deeply about our employees, our clients and our communities, and take the evolving and global nature of the coronavirus very seriously.

We are focused on ensuring our people and our clients are supported with information and resources; closely following the recommendations of the world's leading health organizations and their containment objectives; and implementing our business continuity plans in response to the developments.

While the risks and long-term impacts of coronavirus are hard to quantify and change day-to-day, we are taking appropriate steps and continue to actively monitor the impact the virus may have on the communities we serve.
